Stronger Together: Exhibition of Tech Art, Workshops, and Music

Opening Friday, May 12 at Knockdown Center, 5 pm to 11 pm: $15

The intersection of technology and art is nothing new, that's for sure, but as the digital world is ever-developing, so is the art made using it. This jam-paced show organized by Leaders in Software and Art with Harvestworks Digital Media Art Center features tech and media-based art, 3D scanning workshops, virtual reality, DIY tutorials, music performances, and more.

The roster of artists are predominantly creators hailing from “computer art” programs at nine academic institutions like Columbia, NYU, SVA, and others. The lineup includes the algorithmically-inclined Eric Corriel and immersive audio manipulator Seth Cluett, both of whom B+B has featured previously. Friday’s exhibition preview is ticketed and includes a music performance, but starting at noon on Saturday the show will be free and open for anyone to visit.
